THE BRIGGS CASE

The Professor Suspended From the Ministry.

FULL TEXT OF THE CHARGES

He Will Retain His Position in Union Seminary.

His Opinions in Regard to Errors in the Original Manuscripts of the Scriptures—He Will Adhere to His Past Policy in Regard to Biblical Teachings—Sustained by Seminary Directors.

Washington, D.C., June 1.—The general assembly, at 2:35 this afternoon, adopted the report of the committee suspending Dr. Briggs from the ministry of the Presbyterian church.

The charges originally preferred against Dr. Briggs were as follows:

(1) Teaching that reason is a fountain of divine authority which may savingly enlighten men, even such men as reject the Scriptures as the authoritative proclamation of the will of God, and reject also the way of salvation through the mediation and sacrifice of the Son of God as revealed therein.

(2) Teaching that the church is a fountain of divine authority, which, apart from the Holy Scriptures, may and does savingly enlighten men.

(3) Teaching that errors may have existed in the original text of the Holy Scriptures as it came from its authors.

(4) Teaching that Moses is not the author of the Pentateuch.

(5) Teaching that Isaiah is not the author of half of the books that bears his name.

(6) Teaching that santification is not complete at death, which is contrary to the essential doctrine of the Holy Scripture and of the standards of the church, that the souls of believers are at death at once made perfect in holiness.

These charges were much modified before Dr. Briggs was placed on trial. While speaking in his defense before the General Assembly on Tuesday, the doctor said:

"I now wish to bring forth my position. I shall adhere to the policy which I have thus far followed with regard to the errors in Holy Scripture. I refused to accept the dogma that original autographs are inerrant. I maintained that there are errors in the texts which we have, and that it is probable that the original texts, if we could discover them, would be much different from those we have in that regard. I refused to affirm that there were errors in the original autographs, because it is unscientific and it is unscholarly and it is against the truth-loving spirit of Christianity to make affirmations of dogmas where we can have no certain evidence. I always refrained as far as possible from pointing to errors in the present text of Scripture, but every Biblical scholar admits them."

New York, June 2.—Rev. Charles Augustus Briggs, D. D., returned from Washington to-night. When asked if he had heard of the action of the Presbyterian general assembly in his case he replied:

"Yes, I heard of the sentence against me. I left Washington early in the afternoon, but deem it best not to talk on the matter at present."

"Do you still occupy the Edward Robinson chair of biblical theology in the seminary?" was asked.

"Most certainly I do. Is there anything in the terms of the endowment of that chair, or in the rules of the seminary, which requires that this professorship must be held by a minister of the Presbyterian church? Not at all."

"Has the decision of the general assembly in suspending you from the ministry made any change in your relations with Union seminary?"

"None whatever," replied the doctor. "The general assembly never contributed a dollar to Union seminary. It is supported almost wholly by New York merchants and others."

It was learned from others connected with Union seminary this evening that Prof. Briggs would go right on just as if nothing had happened, and he will be sustained in his action by the board of directors and the members of the faculty of the institute.

Panama Canal Prospects.

Panama, Colombia, June 2.—M. Mange, representative of the liquidators of the Panama Canal Company, said today in an interview that work on the canal here would be renewed at the end of the year. There has already been raised 50,000,000 francs to conduct operations. He thinks hydraulic force may be used in the Culebra cut. The government of Colombia will appropriate $8,500 monthly to apply to the old debt of the state of Panama. Payments will be conducted until the indebtedness is cancelled.

THEIR WRATH APPEASED.

Vernon's Sop to Cerberus—Militarism Rampant.

Vancouver, June 2.—The Commissioner of Lands and Works has increased the grant towards roads in South Vancouver municipality by $3000, and the council's wrath is appeased.

Wm. Murray, logger, of Port Neville, fell on an axe on Tuesday and almost severed his hand from his arm.

Hon. Messrs. Patterson and Haggart came in to-day, and this afternoon a civic deputation waited upon Mr. Patterson to urge him to station C battery here. Col. Holmes is with them. The military sentiment has got possession of the city, and the people are bound to have a militia corps of some kind.

The fire insurance companies are to be taxed $200 a year, with the result that several of them will withdraw from business.

Captain Ross, late master of the steamer Haytien Republic, arrived this morning and will probably live here.

Sleicher's Newspaper Innovation.

New York, June 2.—During the recent congress in Chicago of the press men and women of the world a paper was presented by Hon. J. A. Sleicher, editor-in-chief of the Mail and Express, suggesting that prominent newspapers should issue both Republican and Democratic editions, giving the news of each political party in the edition assigned to that party, and conducting the editorial page in the same manner. This suggestion, which was vigorously discussed at the congress as a decidedly novel innovation, is, it is said, to be experimented upon in this city. According to reports in Newspaper Row, the New York Herald, after it is installed in its new home, may issue Republican and Democratic editions. The evening adjunct of the Herald, the Telegram, is independent in politics, and consequently if the scheme is carried into effect the novel spectacle will be witnessed of a Republican, a Democratic and an independent newspaper being issued from under the same roof and being controlled by the same general management.

THE FARMERS DISAFFECTED.

Conservative Demonstration at Orangeville Poorly Attended.

Ottawa, June 2.—Prof. King, Canadian commissioner to define the Alaska boundary, arrived to-day from the Pacific coast.

The Conservative demonstration at Orangeville, Cardwell district, to which the farmers were invited, was poorly attended yesterday. Minister Foster and Comptrollers Wallace and Wood spoke. They abused Dalton McCarthy, but did not accept the challeng of the latter to open the constituency. Mr. White, member for Cardwell, was in attendance, but did not speak ofres igning.

REGARDING HAWAII.

Prospects of Annexation—Blount's Action Wins General Approval.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 2.—Luther Sevrance, postmaster at Hilo, Hawaii, and for 50 years a resident of the islands, is visiting friends in this city. Speaking to-day of the situation in Hawaii, he said: "The better class of the foreign element want annexation. Any government formed of the people of the islands could not last long. There would be so many conflicting elements that anarchy would be the outcome. The present provisional government, which is practically a military government, could not have lasted as long as it has had it not been for the prospect of anexation.

"If the United States refuses to take us Great Britain will surely step in and establish a British protectorate by placing Princess Kaiulani on the throne. With the assurance of a government such as would result from annexation, capital would find a great field for investment by developing our sugar and coffee lands There are thousands of acres of the best coffee lands in the world that can be bought for $1 per acre. In three years the coffee plant can be got into bearing. It yields a handsome profit and offers an ideal life to the planter.

"I am vice-president of the annexation club of Hilo. I should say that the people care very little what the form of government is so long as we are assured of the protection of the United States. Perhaps a territorial government would be the best."

Speaking of the course pursued by Commissioner Blount, Mr. Sevrance said: "I am inclined to be pleased with it. He can't fail to see that annexation is the only thing for the islands, and I feel sure he must be convinced that it will be a great boon to the United States. I am confident his report will be in favor of taking us under the wing of the United States."

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS.

Enthusiastic Gathering Yesterday—Coal Output—An Art Collection.

Nanaimo, June 2.—The Royal Templars from all parts of the province congregated in the public park yesterday and held a sort of demonstration. Unfortunately the weather was not suitable for the occasion, so that sports had to be abandoned. Among those who addressed the meeting were J. C. Brown, M. P.P., Rev. Mr. Lorimer and Rev. D. A. McRae. The speeches were followed by vocal and instrumental selections. The ladies of the Baptist church attended to the stalls and everything that the visitors required was to be obtained on the grounds. The visitors left for home in the evening.

The shipments of coal for foreign ports during the last month show very little increase in the total, although the output of the New V. C. Co. has increased. The latter sent 36,866 tons from this port, or 20,338 tons more than the other mines. Wellington contributed only 13,946, a great falling off from previous months. East Wellington, with 2,582, sent the total up to 53,394. It is expected that the New V. C. Co. will largely increase their output this month and that it will be close to 50,000 tons.

Rev. G. A. Tovey has met with success in his efforts to collect the paintings which now adorn the walls of St. Alban's hall, which are shortly to be disposed of for the benefit of the rectory fund. Mr. Bamford, a well-known artist of Victoria, has contributed a few paintings, which are much admired, and Mr. Maclure, also of Victoria, sends some meritable pieces.

The customs returns of Nanaimo for the month of May were: Duty collected, $4,146.14; other revenues, $677.00; total, $4,823.14. Imports—Value of goods imported free, $1,507; value of goods dutiable, $12,985; entered for consumption, $11,704; total, $26,196.

The entrance examinations for the high school commenced yesterday. There were 27 candidates, 16 from the city schools and 11 from the districts.

AGAINST THE PILES.

Damage to the Steamer Courser—Another Death From Diphtheria.

New Westminster, June 2.—The steamer Courser, while passing through North Arm bridge on the way to the city last night, was forced by the strong current violently against the piles. Almost the whole port side of the roof was carried away and the cabins twisted out of shape.

The child of a man named Canton, lately of Port Moody, died yesterday of diphtheria in the outhouse of St. Mary's hospital.

A meeting to discuss the political situation will be held at Dewdney to-night. A number of speakers have gone up from here to be present, among whom are Brown and Sword, M. P.P.'s.

In Westminster city and district last month there were 23 births, 12 deaths, 12 marriages; five deaths from diphtheria, two accidents and one found dead.

New Theatrical Circuit.

Tacoma, June 2.—Within the past few days several prominent theatrical men have been forming a scheme to start a new theatrical circuit on the northwest coast. The new circuit would include Portland, Tacoma, Olympia, Seattle, the lower sound and the British Columbia cities, and would no doubt be successful. A prominent manager of Portland was approached with an offer of the management of the circuit. If he accepts work will be begun at once on a new opera house in Tacoma that will cost $100,000.

REVOLUTIONISTS WIN

The Victory of Sacaza's Opponents Complete.

HE TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION

Terrible Slaughter in the Final Battle for the Mastery.

Sacaza Claims a "Moral Victory," As Liberal Principles Will Prevail—A New Ministry Formed and Will Take Office Immediately—The Army Will Disband and Elections be Held.

Mesaya, Nicaragua, June 2.—The peace protocol arranged by the commission, of which U. S. Minister Baker was president, has been signed, but it has not yet been ratified by the principals. Under the terms of the protocol ex-President Sacaza yesterday delivered to Senor Salvador Machado the office of president. The new ministry will take possession to-day.

Immediately after assuming office President Machado began the disarming of the troops in the capital. The revolutionary forces will enter Managua today before disarming. Machado is a Progressist and is considered a safe man. When the new ministry is formed they will appoint three members. All questions relating to the administration of the government will be decided by a vote of the majority of the ministers. Free elections will be held throughout the republic for members of the constituent assembly and president. Both armies, under the agreement, will be disbanded and all expenses of war incurred by either party will be considered a national debt to be paid out of the public treasury. In the new government the revolutionists will have a majority in the cabinet. Many of the revolutionists were dissatisfied with the terms of settlement, but their opposition was overcome by the advice of cool-headed leaders, whose opinions prevailed.

The presence of an American warship in Corinto is greatly needed. Americans and other foreigners are subjected to many indignities, and obstacles are placed in their way when they wish to leave or enter the country. The commandant says the passport of the U.S. minister is of no value. It is treated as so much waste paper. There is only one recognized document of value, the permit to be obtained from the minister of war. Foreigners who wish to go to the interior or to leave the country find it necessary to obtain this permit. So great is the delay in the office of the minister of war that foreigners frequently lose their passage because the special permits have not been received. No Nicaraguan is allowed to leave the country.

For the first time the government forces admitted the extent of their defeat in the battle of Barranca. Five hundred of their soldiers were killed and as many deserted during the battle and joined the revolutionists.

Corinto, Nicaragua, June 2.—Sacaza has resigned, it is true, but he has gained the actual victory over the revolutionists. In his terms to United States Minister Baker, he said: "I plainly see that my personality is objected to, but I shall not sacrifice the party so carefully chosen by my predecessor, President Evaristo, by submitting to the indignity of having it cast to the ground. The insurgents desire my resignation without sacrificing those principles of Liberalism that I have striven to instill into the hearts of the Nicaraguan people. I am willing to resign from this moment, but if the company is to succumb to the domination of the church and the retrograde rule, then I shall not submit to any changes in the present form of government." It has been understood by Minister Baker that the canal interests will be protected both by President Sacaza and his followers, and by the revolutionists. If President Sacaza's requests are carried out, under no circumstances will there be any more fighting, as President Sacaza has said that he reposes the peace of Nicaragua in the hands of the foreign ministers, and that any future act of violence will be laid at the door of the latter.

City of Mexico, June 2.—Ex-President Sacaza of Nicaragua will make a tour of the United States and Europe.

The Laplaine Massacre.

Panama, Colombia, June 2.—The people of the West Indian Islands of Dominica are greatly wrought up over the refusal of the British government to grant an enquiry into the circumstances connected with the Laplaine massacre. The inhabitants of the other islands which form the British colony of the Leeward Islands share this feeling. The bishop endorses a protest which demands the impeachment of the governor, Sir William Frederick Haynes Smith. Trouble is feared throughout the island and the imperial government has been asked to send a warship here.

Drummers' Demonstration.

St. Louis, June 2.—The Travellers' Protective Association has completed its final arrangements for its annual convention at Peoria next week, and for its demonstration at Chicago on June 10th. Mr. George S. McGrew, the national president, has received word from the T.P.A. societies in several states that they will be represented very largely at Chicago and propose to make it the greatest reunion of travelling men ever held. There is also to be a commercial travellers' demonstration on July 26th, Liberia Day, but the 15,000 members of the organization will unite on June 10th in preference.

Shot by His Mistress.

Newark, N. J, June 2.—Lew Brown a well known sporting man, was shot and killed by Emma Woods at three o'clock this morning. Brown was proprietor of a saloon known as Tammany Hall; the murderess is one of Newark's notorious demi-monde. The couple lived together for the last four months, and the shooting is supposed to be the result of a quarrel. No one was present at the time of the shooting but Brown and his mistress.

Gas Did It.

Oakland, Cal., June 2.—Mrs. Dr. J. A. Dupree took her life last night by attaching a small rubber tube to a gas jet and conveying the gas to the bed she occupied. When found her head was covered up in a blanket, and the end of the rubber tube was against her nose. Last fall she made an ineffectual attempt to kill herself with poison. She was an eccentric woman and often threatened to commit suicide.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

Mr. Labouchere Questions the Government—Balfour on the Constabulary.

London, June 1.—In the house of commons to-day Mr. H. Labouchere, M. P. for Northampton, addressed a series of questions to the government, with the view of obtaining definite information as to whether the foreign office had authorized Sir Gerald Portal to proclaim a British protectorate in Uganda.

Sir Edward Grey, under secretary to the foreign office, persisted, in his reply to Mr. Labouchere, in referring him to the published instructions given to Sir Gerald Portal when he went on his mission.

In response to inquiries as to the relations between Great Britain and the Triple Alliance, Sir Edward Grey stated that no pledge unknown to parliament had been given to any power that was a member of the Triple Alliance.

Mr. Arnold-Foster, Liberal-Unionist, M. P. for West Belfast, made a motion to adjourn in order to obtain opportunity for a debate on the growth of crime in the counties of Kerry and Limerick, Ireland, and the alleged failure of the Irish executive to check the increase of outlawry. Mr. Arnold-Foster accused Chief Secretary Morley of being apathetic towards the increase of crime in Ireland, and pointed out that since Mr. Morley had taken office there had been seventeen cases of outrage by moonlighters in the County of Limerick, as against only one during the preceding 12 months.

Chief Secretary Morley in reply admitted the increase of crime in Limerick, but contested the accuracy of Mr. Arnold-Foster's figures. Since April, he said, there had not been a single moonlight outrage.

The division on Mr. Arnold-Foster's motion to adjourn resulted in its defeat by a vote of 241 to 203.

The house then went into committee on the home rule bill.

Mr. Gladstone decepted the proposed amendment that the right to interfere in hostilities between foreign countries be excepted from the powers of the Irish legislature.

Mr. George Wyndham, Conservative for Dover, proposed to exclude from the control of the Irish authorities all the Irish police except the local forces under local officials.

Rt. Hon. Mr. Gladstone opposed the motion.

Rt. Hon. Mr. Balfour, leader of the Unionists, spoke at length in support of Mr. Wyndham's amendment. Clause 3, he said, was supposed to provide that the Irish legislature should not have power to make laws concerning the military or naval forces or the defence of the realm, unless some such check as that suggested by the member for Devon were adopted. However, half the provisions of the bill must remain as worthless as the paper it was printed on. What value could the members possibly attach to the clause enacting that the new Irish legislature should have nothing to do with the military forces if at the same time the Irish government should be permitted to control an armed force of constabulary 12,000 strong, while in the clause in question lay the right of the Irish legislature to increase the strength of the constabulary? Unless the amendments were adopted there would be nothing to prevent the Irish government from forming an army of its own under the pretense of reorganizing or developing this constabulary. The central police force was undoubtedly well adapted to present needs; but under the new Irish government it would probably be used as a means to a far different end. One might prophesy with reasonable certainty that it would be made an instrument to accomplish the oppression of Ulster. A few months' training, moreover, would turn the constabulary into a formidable miltary force, such as the Irish government ought not to control. To allow this was pure lunacy. By sanctioning a clause under which such things were possible, parliament would virtually grant to Ireland the disposition of a semi-military organization, which, in the critical days of the imperial government, might push Great Britain to severe straits. (Prolonged Unionist cheers.) It was true the prime minister regarded it as little less than personal to show any mistrust of the Nationalists; but, even so, parliament must look forward to the effects of this bill, not only upon the Nationalists this year and next, but also upon those who would lead the Irish in from ten to fifteen years. They ought not to shut their eyes to the possibilities of the future, nor create a danger which it might strain the resources of the imperial government to meet.

Rt. Hon. Mr. Morley, chief secretary for Ireland, in reply to Mr. Balfour, reminded the members that the bill did not place the Irish police under the control of the authorities in Dublin. In fact, he said, it expressly stipulated that such should not be the case.

Mr. Balfour—Nothing in the bill prevents the formation of a new constabulary.

Mr. Morley—It would be in direct contravention of the bill if the Irish legislature should make laws to organize a force on anything like a military footing. (Hear, hear.)

Rt. Hon. Mr. Goschen (chancellor of the exchequer in the last Salisbury cabinet) insisted that the safeguards provided by the bill against misuse of the constabulary were quite inadequate. There was not a line in the bill, he said, to prevent the centralization of the constabulary and its transformation into a military force under the command of the government in Dublin.

Sir Henry James, Liberal-Unionist for Bury, said that an armed force might exist in Ireland and yet not be the military force forbidden under the bill. If the government were really as desirous as they professed to be to prevent the Irish legislature from forming such a force, why would they not agree to the amendment?

Rt. Hon. Mr. Gladstone said he was satisfied that no semi-military force under the name of police could be legally constituted in Ireland under the bill; nevertheless, if the prohibitions already proposed appeared to be insufficient, he was willing to insert in the bill words to meet the case beyond all doubt. (Hear, hear.)

After this delay Mr. Wyndham, in accordance with Mr. Balfour's advice, withdrew his amendment.

Somewhat later, Mr. Morley accepted for the government an amendment exempting from the control of the Irish government forts, magazines, arsenals, naval dockyards, and other similar means for the defense of the realm.

Madrid's Favorite Matador Retires.

Madrid, June 1.—Lagartijo, the king of matadors and the idol of the Madrid populace, made his last public appearance to-day. The performance was for his benefit, and besides the fee of 50,000 pesos he received half the gate receipts, which were 150,000. The official prices for boxes were from 100 to 300 reals, although in most cases they were much higher, as the seats were sold and resold shortly before the performance at a fabulous advance. More than 14,000 persons were present. Lagartijo was greeted with demonstrations of mad enthusiasm, which were repeated at the death of each bull. All the bulls were from the herd of the Duke of Veragua, who breeds the fiercest fighters in Spain. After Lagartijo had killed six of them he retired, amid the wildest cheering and waving of kandkerchiefs, hats and mantles. Lagartijo will pass the rest of his life on his estate at Cordova. Despite his expensive habits and his proverbial generosity, he is a millionaire. He made all his money in bull fighting.

NELLIE'S ADVENTURE.

Strange Story by a Young Woman Who Disappeared.

Seattle, June 1.—On May 3, Nellie Holgate, employed as a saleswoman in a dry goods store, disappeared from Seattle. She had gone for a row on Lake Washington, and next morning an empty boat was found. Her hat and cleak were found in the water. It was supposed she had been drowned, and the lake was dragged and the search continued for weeks. The fact was discovered that she had $5000 insurance on her life and then the people began to suspect she was not dead. This suspicion was confirmed to-day by the reception of the following dispatch from Lead, South Dakota: Miss Nellie Holgate returned here yesterday. She related this remarkable tale: "I left the Hotel Vendome, Seattle, for a call on Mrs. Lutz, but at the last moment changed my mind and went alone for a row on the lake, intending to call on her on my return. I left from the foot of Madison street, with Madrona park as my destination. When near the Lewis cottage a man and woman called out to me and I rowed into the shore, thinking it was some one I knew who wished to ask me for some information. I came up near and the man grabbed my boat and pulled it out on the land, at the same time saying: 'I want the money and watch I know you have.' I had almost $100 which I had intended to bank that day, but neglected it, and seeing no way out I gave it to him, and also my watch, pleading with him at the same time not to do me harm. He appeared to know me and to fear that I recognized him and after speaking to his wife in a strange language, which I took to be Italian, he turned to me and said: 'I guess we will take you with us.'

In spite of my remonstrances, they took my boat and rowed it to a place where they had a team in waiting, and, leaving my jacket in the boat, drove off, in the meantime threatening me with instant death if I in any way attracted attention. By leaving the vicious-looking woman with me whenever the man went in search of food, stopping in isolated places during the night, and shunning all the cities of any size, they managed to keep me a captive until we reached Pocatello, Idaho, where we stayed over night to escape a terrible storm which raged. I was placed in a room by myself and told not to move during the night, with the usual threats repeated. In the morning, on venturing out, I was told by the good people with whom I found myself that my companions had departed during the night. I told them my story as soon as possible, they drove me to Pocatello and assisted me with means to pay my way to Denver, from where I communicated with my folks with the result that I am here safe and sound." The young woman is at present staying at her parents' home on South Mill street.

General Dispatches.

Berlin, June 1.—The Cologne Gazette publishes this morning a leader supposed to be inspired, warning the people of Alsace and Lorraine that if they elected deputies opposed to the army bill they will be regarded as doing their utmost to menace the integrity of the Empire.

London, June 1.—Advices from Corea say that placards posted throughout the capital warn foreigners that unless they leave the country before a certain date the Coreans will rise and kill them.

London, June 1.—The Dundee whaler Balerna has returned from the Antarctic Ocean with 6000 seal skins.

Calcutta, June 1.—Reports from Manipur say that all the rivers in the country have overflowed their banks and have swept away the bridges and submerged villages and fields. Dozens of dead bodies are floating down stream in every river. At one point on a small stream twenty bodies were recovered in three days.

Paris, June 1. The deputies passed today the electoral bill, amended so as to exclude from the chamber all salaried public officials and all clergymen.

San Francisco, June 1.—U. S. Commissioner Sawyer is engaged in hearing testimony in the cases of the seven Chinese recently smuggled into the United States by way of Victoria. The attorneys for the defense protest that each case must be tried on its own merits. It is apparent that a hard fight is going to be made to secure the release of the Chinese. Assistant District Attorney Witter believes that all the men will be ordered to be deported. Should such an order be made an appeal will be most likely taken to the circuit court.

Chicago, June 2.—The case of the State of Illinois against the whiskey trust, better known as the Distilling and Cattle Feeding Company, is again before Judge Tuley this morning. At the preliminary proceedings on Friday last the counsel for the defendants claimed that they were unable to clearly decide upon the course to be followed in resisting the attack of the commonwealth, and despite the opposition of the attorney-general they were allowed a week. A lengthy reply was filed on behalf of the respondents, which takes issue with all the allegations set forth in the bill filed in behalf of the state asking that the trust be declared an illegal corporation.

Canadian Cattle in Scotland.

Glasgow, May 29.—The Glasgow importers of Canadian cattle have sent word by cable to the exporters to stop shipping, as the delays, owing to the requirements of the board of agriculture that the cattle shall be slaughtered on arrival, are ruinous to the trade. Three vessels loaded with cattle are awaiting the disposal of their cargoes and others are coming. Prices have fallen £3 on each animal. In view of the fact that no disease in the cattle has been developed the shippers have again requested the board of agriculture to raise the existing erbargo, but the board refused to grant the equest.

Foundered in a Cyclone.

London, May 29.—During the cyclone, which has been raging in the Bay of Bengal, the ship Germania was lost and 64 men who were on board the vessel lost their lives with the ship. The British bark Rydalmere, Capt. Bernard, which recently sailed from Calcutta, was swept high and dry on shore near Diamond Harbor, in the river, 35 miles below Calcutta. The British ship Glengary, Capt. Lindsay, was abandoned at sea, but the crew was saved. The British steamer Germania sailed from Batoum April 22 for Calcutta, and passed Perim, in the Gulf of Bombay, India, on May 5. She is probably the vessel mentioned in the above dispatch.

VICTORY OF ISINGLASS.

Description of the Race Which the Now Famous Colt Won.

London, June 1.—The great Derby race at Epsom was won, as already announced, by McCalmont's bay colt Isinglass. It was exactly 3:18 when the flag fell to a good start of the eleven horses. Lord William dashed to the front and set the pace, followed by Royal Harry, Raeburn, Williams and Irish Wake, running in a bunch close up, followed by Son-of-a-Gun, Peppercorn and Isinglass. Behind the last three named were Ravensbury, with Dame President last. Before reaching Sherwoods, Lord William drew clear of the bunch, which had been running him closely. Here the other horses also changed positions, Williams being first behind Lord William, followed by Quickly Wise, Peppercorn and Royal Harry, running nearly on equal terms, while behind them came Raeburn, Son-of-a-Gun and Dame President, with Isinglass, the favorite, and Ravensbury bringing up the rear. At the mile post Lord William was being ridden hard, but was still in front.

When this point was reached, however, Isinglass, which had been given his head, had come through the bunch and was running second, Williams third, Raeburn fourth, with Irish Wake, Royal Harry, Quickly Wise and Peppercorn in a bunch. Son-of-a-Gun had fallen back and was bringing up the rear. When the last hill-top was reached Lord William fell back beaten. In the meantime Williams had passed Isinglass, as had also Raeburn, and Williams in front, Isinglass third, followed by Royal Harry, Irish Wake, Peppercorn and Son-of-a-Gun in a bunch, Quickly Wise and Lord William at the tail of the race. Half way down the hill Raeburn headed Williams; immediately after Isinglass and Royal Harry passed Williams also.

As they came to the stretch Isinglass, running on the inside, went to the front, closely followed by Raeburn, Royal Harry, Peppercorn and Ravensbury. When the distance post was reached Ravensbury had passed Royal Harry and Peppercorn and was running third. Coming on, Ravensbury gradually overhauled and pased Raeburn, but he could not get near Isinglass, which was making a beautiful race, the others running in this order: Peppercorn, Quickly Wise, Royal Harry, Irish Wake, Son-of-a-Gun, Dame President, Williams. Lord William's saddle girths broke and Jockey Mullen was thrown. This, of course, put Lord William out of the running. Isinglass maintained the lead from Ravensbury, and coming on won the race by a length and a half, two lengths between Ravensbury, second, and Raeburn, third.

And other necessary drains not specified.

AND WHEREAS the estimated cost of such works is $125,000.

AND WHEREAS for the purpose aforesaid it is intended to raise by way of loan upon the credit of the city the sum of $125,000.

AND WHEREAS it will require the sum of $8,125 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt and interest hereinafter mentioned.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the corporation of the city of Victoria according to the last revised assessment roll, being for the year 1892, was $18,749,125.

AND WHEREAS it will require an annual special rate of four-fifths of one mill in the dollar for the payment of the interest and for creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the principal of the said new debt according to the Municipal Act, 1892.

AND WHEREAS it is intended to reduce the general rate so that the said special rate shall not increase the total rate of taxation.

Be it therefore enacted by the Council of the Corporation of the City of Victoria as follows:

Sec. 1. It shall be lawful for the Mayor of the Corporation of the City of Victoria to borrow upon the credit of the said Corporation by way of debentures hereinafter mentioned, from any person or persons or body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same as a loan, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $125,000 00 currency, and to cause all such sums so raised or received to be paid into the hands of the treasurer of the said corporation for the purpose and with the object hereinbefore recited.

Sec. 2. It shall be lawful for the said Mayor to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums as may be required, not exceeding, however, the sum of $125,000 00 in currency, each of the said debentures being of the amount of $1,000, and all such debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said corporation and signed by the Mayor thereof.

Sec. 4. The said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent. per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half yearly at the office of the said treasurer.

Sec. 5. For the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest to become due thereon an equal special rate of four-fifths of one mill in the dollar shall in addition to all other rates be levied and collected in each year upon all rateable property within the city of Victoria during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

Sec. 6. In case of any conflict, inconsistency or repugnancy between the provisions of this by-law and any of the provisions of the Local Improvement By-law, 1892, as amended by By-law No. 178, entitled, "A By-law to amend the Local Improvement By-law, 1892," the provisions of this by-law shall prevail and override any of the provisions of such Local Improvement By-law to the extent of any such conflict, inconsistency or repugnancy, but this by-law shall not be deemed to in any wise repeal, alter or amend such Local Improvement By-law and amendment, except in so far as this by-law is concerned, and then so far only as is necessary to give full force and effect to this by-law.

Sec. 7. This by-law shall before the passage thereof receive the assent of the electors of the said corporation in a manner provided for by the Municipal Act, 1892, or any amendment thereto, and shall take effect on the first day of May, 1893.

CANADIAN DISPATCHES.

The News of Eastern Canada in Short Paragraphs.

Judge Patterson of the Dominion supreme court is dangerously ill.

John Harris, builder, Toronto, has assigned. The statement shows assets of $38,000 and liabilities of less than half that amount.

J. R. Baily & Co., coal and wood dealers, Toronto, have assigned. Their liabilities are roughly estimated at $60,000. Their larger creditors are United States coal men.

Actions were entered at Montreal by the provincial government against the Allan steamship line and a number of wholesale merchants for having made false returns to their collector.

Jacob Brant, a half-breed who claims to be a descendant of the great Joseph Brant, was sentenced in the Hamilton police court the other day to two weeks' imprisonment for stealing a coat.

The Montreal wholesale firm of Regan, White & Co. is embarrassed, owing to the financial stringency, keen competition and bad debts. Their liabilities amount to $30,000, with assets about the same.

On the first of next month the domestic postal rate of Canada will be applied to Newfoundland and vice versa. Under the new arrangements the postage on letters will be three cents instead of five. Newspapers will be transmitted free.

The county of Bagot, where hundreds of buildings were destroyed and several lives lost in the cyclone last year, suffered severely again during the storm on Tuesday last. In four parishes about 100 houses and sheds were destroyed. No lives were lost.

Alfred H. Wilson, doing business in Montreal as Wilson & Forest, has assigned at the demand of Carpentier & Finn, contractors. The liabilities amount to $81,000; unsecured, $120,000. The assets consist mainly of real estate in various parts of the city.

It is understood that the inland revenue department has decided to invoke the law against certain druggists who have been selling tinctures deficient in alcoholic strength. An analysis of the samples obtained in different cities shows that dishonest druggists have not scrupled to defraud the public by palming off an inferior article as the genuine one.

Considerable indignation is felt at the action of the Michigan board of health in sending two agents to the Grosse Isle quarantine and sub stations and interfering with Canadian work. They have, moreover, had the impudence to demand from the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific railways salaries of $100 a month, which the companies hardly dare refuse.

Hon. David Mills passed through Winnipeg on Wednesday, having been summoned by a telegram urgently requesting him to return east. He expressed his regret that he would be unable to speak to the members of the Liberal club during the trip, but stated that it was his intention to return in August or September on a special tour, when he will deliver addresses in that city and the cities of the coast on the leading questions of the day.

Will be Lynched if Caught.

Laurel, Del., June 2.—John Dennis, a negro, who has hitherto been sober and industrious, drove into Salisbury yesterday with a load of strawberries. After selling them he got drunk. On reaching home his father remonstrated with him. Dennis picked up his gun and said he would leave the house for good. His wife ran after him, begging him to return. He levelled his gun at her and fired, and she fell, mortally wounded. The murderer's mother upbraided him, whereupon he tried to kill her, but she escaped. The father, aged 76, tried to interfere, but the son placed the muzzle of the gun against the old man's breast and fired. The father fell dead. The murderer had two hours' start when news of the murders was brought to the town. Deputy-Sheriff Hearn with a posse started in pursuit. Dennis was overtaken in the woods to-day. He agreed to surrender, but as he approached the posse he lifted his gun and fired, killing the sheriff instantly. The posse was so startled that they allowed the negro to escape. He is still at large. Scores of men are after him, and he will be lynched if captured.

Anti-Trust Convention.

Chicago, June 2.—The committee of arrangements having charge of the great anti-trust convention, which opens in this city on Monday next, has received advices from two-thirds of the states of the Union intimating that either the governor thereof or commercial organizations had designated delegates to represent them in the gathering. The only executive that has declined the invitation are Governors Flower of New York and Matthews of Indiana. Texas, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Alabama, New Mexico and Kansas will be largely represented. Central Music Hall, with a seating capacity of nearly 3000, has been engaged for the sessions of the convention.

Peary's Next Trip.

Philadelphia, June 2.—Despite the report that his leave of absence was to be revoked by Secretary Herbert, Lieut. Peary, the intrepid Arctic explorer, is busily engaged in completing his preparations for his next trip, upon which he expects to start within 15 days. He is now at St. John's, Newfoundland, but is expected here in a day or two. The trip is to be made under the auspices of the Geographical Club of Philadelphia, which has furnished $10,000 on half of the estimated expense, and will receive in return whatever collections of scientific value may be made. Mrs. Peary will again accompany her husband on the expedition.

The First Lady in France.

Madame Carnot is a brunette, with dark blue eyes, a pale complexion, delicately moulded features, and hair as black and glossy as black satin, writes Lucy Hamilton Hooper in a delightful sketch, with portrait, of the home life and personality of the wife of the President of the French republic in the Ladies' Home Journal. Her expression is at once intellectual and charming. Outside her official duties, which are many, Madame Carnot leads a very quiet and domestic life. She rises at 8 o'clock, and her first breakfast, consisting of a cup of coffee and a roll, is served to her in her dressing room. Until 10 o'clock she occupies herself with her private correspondence, which always includes a letter to one or other of her children, only her youngest son, Francois, who is at school in Paris, being at home. At 10 o'clock she joins the President in his library and aids him in examining the voluminous mass of letters which arrives daily at the Elysee. Her thorough knowledge of modern languages and her intelligence and unfailing good sense make of her a valuable assistant. The second breakfast, or lunch, is served at 1 o'clock, in the breakfast room of the palace, and is usually a very simple repast. Guests are seldom invited to luncheon at the Elysee, as both the President and his wife prefer entertaining their friends at dinner. Lunch once concluded, Madame Carnot, on the days of state dinner parties or balls, gives audience to her chief cook. Then she drives out, either to accompany her husband to the opening of an exhibition or the inauguration of some charitable institution, or to some other official function. The ordering and superintending of her toilettes absorbs a good deal of her time, and is really one of her official duties, the dress of the wife of the ruler of state exercising a widespread influence over the commercial interests of France. Then she is interested in a number of charities, and drops in from time to time to see how her proteges are progressing.

ASTRONOMY IN 1892.

The Most Valuable Pieces of Work Done Last Year.

The first important discovery of the last year, said Garrett P. Serviss in a recent lecture at Brooklyn, was Holmes' comet, which astronomers first got sight of last summer. Although there was a great deal of newspaper talk about the possibility of this comet striking the earth, there really existed no ground for such fears. As a matter of fact its density was so much less than the density of the earth that even had such a collision occurred we would not seriously have felt the shock. Astronomers, however, have still been investigating the comet, and the scientific world has shown much interest in their researches.

Several views were exhibited of Prof. Pickering's work in South America. Prof. Pickering thinks he has discovered a large number of markings, canals, etc., on the face of the planet Mars. Other astronomers, however, in different parts of the world have not confirmed these observations, and Mr. Serviss is inclined to wait for further evidence before accepting them.

A fifth satellite of Jupiter was found September 9th, by Prof. Barnhard, of Lick observatory. The new satellite is 60,000 miles from Jupiter, and is estimated to have a diameter of 1000 miles. Compared as to size with the other satellites of Jupiter, which were discovered centuries ago by Galieo, it appears as a mere dot in the heavens, even through the largest telescope. Jupiter's satellites are unlike those of Mars, which, said the speaker, are often merely mountains of the planet flung out into space.

One of the most valuable pieces of astronomical work this last year, which up to the present time has been withheld from the public, was the result of mere accident. John Lewis, of Danbury, Conn., pointed his glass one night toward Holmes' comet with the intention of photographing it. The plate was exposed for 30 minutes, but failed to develop a negative of the comet. He discovered however, a luminous streak which ran clear across his plate and which corresponded to the track of the comet. It covered 20 degrees of the heavens. The picture turned out to be the most complete photograph of a comet ever made. it was not Holmes' comet nor any of the comets known to astronomy, but an unknown celestial wanderer which struck the earth, as is supposed, in the vicinity of Danbury, and which men of science are searching for yet.

Sir John Herschel took some remarkable views of the nebulae of the southern sky at his observatory at the Cape of Good Hope.

When the planet Mars was in opposition last summer the ice caps at the poles were visable by means of the telescope, and in spite of the 40,000,000 of miles of space intervening the ice could be seen melting as the summer advanced, creating enormous overflows and inundations. It has been told that at the time of the vernal equinox the canals of Mars double; but the duplication is still doubtful. The theory by which some astronomers explain these canals is that asteroids come in collision with the planet and plow their way along the surface. A more recent theory regards the so-called canals as ridges of mountains. The average canal is 80 miles wide and 2000 or 3000 miles long. The larger ones have a width of hundreds of miles.

Wondrous Though Little.

It is not always the things of gigantic proportions that excite the greatest curiosity.

Mastodons, elephants, whales and other creatures of monstrous size are and have been wonders indeed; so, too, are the pyramids, the great cathedrals, towers, monuments, etc.; the great Corliss engines, the 16-drive wheel locomotive and other triumphs of mechanical skill.

But, while this is true beyond question, how about the wonders revealed by the microscope, and the work of the deft-fingered artist, D. A. Vr. Meer, who painted a landscape on the side of a grain of wheat? By the use of a strong microscope only could the wonders of this minute painting be distinguished.

Yet when a good glass was brought to bear upon what appeared to be a spot of variegated paint upon the side of the wheat grain all was changed into a beautiful landscape—a forest, a mill at the side of a river, a miller climbing an outside stairway with a sack of grain upon his back, a tall cliff at the side of the mill and a winding road along which some peasants are trying to drive a refractory pig.

If the inventor and builder of the great Corliss engine that furnished power to turn all the machinery at the Centennial Exposition of 1876 deserves great praise, what shall we say of the skillful English watchmaker who exhibits an engine of 122 distinct pieces (not including 33 bolts and screws) which could all be hidden in a lady's No. 7 thimble!

In the milt of a codfish, or in water in which decaying vegetables have been infused, the microscope discovers animalculae ("little animals") so minute that 10,000 of them would not exceed in bulk a single grain of mustard.

Yet, strange to say, these infinitesimal creatures are supplied with organs as complete and as complicated as those of the whale, the elephant or the mastodon!—St. Louis Republican.

HALF-STARVED BABIES!

How to Make Them Strong and Happy!

Physicians well know that infants are often half-starved at the breast, and often get sick and become a prey to disease. There are many mothers who fail to supply enough of breast milk for the proper nourishment of their little ones. When this is the case, the wise course is to resort to the best form of artificial food. Eminent physicians who have given the subject of "infant dieting" the attention it deserves, unhesitatingly declare that Lactated Food is the only safe and sensible diet that can be adopted. There is one great reason why Lactated Food should be used, and it is worthy of every mother's consideration: "It is owing to its peculiar and scientific composition—the nearest approach to mother's milk of any infant diet ever prepared." This model food will not inflame, irritate or constipate the bowels. It protects from cholera infantum, diarrhoea and all summer complaints, and babies grow fast who are fed on it.

The Wells & Richardson Co., 200 Mountain street, Montreal, will gladly send a full sized can of this food free to any mother who has not yet tried it. Send in your full address, mother; this food may save your baby's life.

ABOUT POLICIES.

Our good friend the Colonist is much concerned over the Liberal policy, which appears in its eyes to want distinctiveness. This interest in the fortunes of the Liberal party is evidence of our neighbor's great kindness of heart, for it is not usual to find men trying to instruct opponents for their good. We may be allowed to suggest, however, that it is not the Liberal but the Conservative policy that is at present being tried in the balance, with a very strong chance of its being found wanting. If it is true that charity begins at home, it would seem wise on the part of the Colonist to exert itself on behalf of its friends, leaving its opponents to find a way out for themselves. This is all the more apparent when we keep in view the fact that the Liberals are not in any trouble over their own policy. They have declared time and again for greater freedom of trade and shown their determination to secure it for the country if possible. The Conservative leaders, on the other hand, are bent upon the maintenance of trade restriction, and their present purpose is to find a way of accomplishing this while at the same time appearing to acquiesce in the popular demand for tariff reform. Perhaps their scheme will be successful, but the signs of the time decidedly indicate that it will not. If the Colonist is not satisfied with our judgment in this matter, it may yet be ready to give heed to that of the Monetary Times, which is well-known as an influential and non-partisan exponent of the opinions of the commercial class. In a recent issue that paper speaks as follows: "The government had the game in its own hands, but it seems determined to throw it away. It could have moved cautiously, but distinctly, towards a revenue tariff, and thus put itself on a level with the rising tide of reaction against exaggerated protection. It could have taken a line which would have best accorded with the interests of the manufacturer and the consumer. If the manufacturers were wise they would cease to resist a change which is bound to come; and they would so act as to try to break as much as possible the force of the blow which will affect their interests. With those who do not see that tariff revision is inevitable it would be a waste of time to argue. If they will not assist one party to make a reasonable revision, they will be likely to have to take a still more unwelcome measure from the other. The moment the tariff becomes a distinct issue between political parties, the possibility of a change must be reckoned with." Our commercial contemporary also observes: "As an exponent of tariff policy Mr. Foster is doing his best to draw on his colleagues to the brink of disaster." In view of all the circumstances, the Colonist would perhaps find more profit in laboring with the leaders of its own party than in efforts to improve the policy of the Liberals.

THE SEWERAGE.

In commenting on the proposed by-laws a few days ago the Times expressed the opinion that the sewerage loan would not commend itself to the citizens, partly because of the magnitude of the sum asked and partly because of the local improvement complication. These circumstances caused the piling up of a heavy majority against the by-law. We do not suppose that many of those who voted nay were opposed to the construction of the sewers; they only disapproved of the work being done in the particular way proposed. But we are afraid the effect of the negative vote will be a long postponement of the work. Theoretically, the local improvement plan is certainly the best, but serious difficulties place themselves in the way of its employment, and we doubt whether they will be overcome very speedily. Connections with the already constructed sewers are supposed to be made on this plan, yet very few have so far been effected. The city is in fact getting very little benefit from the expenditure it has incurred. When it is found so difficult to secure the execution of this minor work on the local improvement system, we may expect that the building of main sewers will be even more tardy. This fact is not pleasant to contemplate, and altogether the situation is not as satisfactory as it might be. If the people of the city are wise they will set about devising a remedy, since they object to the plans proposed by the council.

"Mohammed" Alexander Russell Webb, who is an American converted to Islam, and who has undertaken the work of converting other Americans to the same faith, shows a goodly amount of worldly wisdom in invoking the aid of the printing press. He has commenced at New York the publication of an excellently printed and well edited weekly journal, which he calls "The Moslem World," by means of which he purposes to "spread abroad among the independent thinkers of America a knowledge of the character and teachings of Mohammed," and also to correct errors "into which the masses have fallen, through the false history and misconceptions published by prejudiced and ignorant followers of other systems, who have written about Islam and its inspired founder." He further says: "In undertaking this work, I feel that I am doing humanity a service, for I am honestly and sincerely of the opinion that Islam and the Islamic laws, engrafted upon our social system, will prove a blessing of inestimable value, and a corrective of those evils which are sapping the life of our domestic institutions, and with which Church-Christianity seems powerless to contend." An American trying to convert other Americans to the Moslem faith is a rare spectacle. If Mohammed Alexander Russell succeeds in placing the other Mohammed ahead of the Almighty Dollar with some of his fellow countrymen he will have accomplished a wonderful work indeed.

From the Halifax Herald's report it appears that importers and users of iron who interviewed the two investigating ministers at Halifax offered the following list of grievances:

1st. The duty on iron and steel is excessive under present conditions. It amounts to from 50 to 75 per cent. ad valorem. It was put on imported iron when there were local factories in operation. Protection was the object. There is no iron made in Canada now such as is required by the trade.

2nd. Mixed duties are protested against. A common ad valorem duty alone is acceptable. Specific duty is not a favorite.

3rd. It was urged that duty be assessed on real cost and not on arbitrary values.

4th. The oath required of importers that fishing supplies entitled to free entry were intended for the fishery and no other use was declared to be obnoxious. Because, after leaving the importer's hands, he cannot say what use the supplies will be put to.

5th. Clauses in the tariff that make it possible for a manufacturer to import goods at a lower rate than a merchant can import the same were asked by the delegation to be expunged.

As the Chronicle remarks, "the concession of even a part of these demands will knock the national policy into the shape of a wrecked railway car." But they will not be conceded; the iron "infant industries" will take care of that.

A Toronto dispatch of May 27 reads: "At a public meeting last evening to promote the Georgian Bay canal to supply Toronto with water and provide a short waterway for vessels from Lake Huron to Lake Ontario at a cost of $65,000,000, it was announced that a company had been formed to undertake the scheme, which proposed to supply electricity for power generated by water power at the rate of one cent per hour per horse power. It was said that the proposed canal would shorten the lake route from the west to Toronto and Montreal by 400 miles and to Europe by 900. The meeting was delighted to find that the company proposed to ask no bonus from the city or provincial government and endorsed the scheme." The information supplied at the meeting would have been more complete if some statement had been made as to the probable source of the $65,000,000. Possibly the promoters know where they can lay their fingers on this trifling sum. Torontonians have heard a good deal about this same scheme in the past, and they will hardly jubilate over it now to any great extent, even with its new and pleasant variation.

The Westerner in the Art Gallery.

There are visitors in the art building every day who show by their faces that they would be more at ease somewhere else in Jackson Park. They walk through the rooms as though they were dodging their creditors. They hang their heads before a marble Diana, and steal covert glances at some of the ambitious efforts of the French artists. Their modesty is so pronounced that it hurts them as badly as a bunion in a tight shoe. A man with his wife strolled into the French section yesterday. He had the appearance of a clergyman looking for a job. She was more worldly in her dress and manner. Before he knew where he was going he was standing right in front of the pastoral scene, remarkable for the amount of flesh color it contains, if for nothing else. The man pulled his hat over his eyes and turned to his wife, who was looking in another direction.

"Come out here," he gruffly commanded. "I've seen enough of this already."

His wife started in meek submission, but her eyes fell on the pastoral scene. Her feet stuck fast to the floor, while her husband repeated his command.

"Wait for me out in the other room, John," she sweetly remarked. "This is France, you know. You had better go over to the architectural exhibit."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

End of Volapuk in France.

Many persons will perhaps breathe a sigh of relief upon hearing that Volapuk is doomed in this country at last. French business men will have none of it. Its most energetic apostle and propagator has been sent away from the Paris headquarters of the Volapukists and is now filling an important post as professor of German in a provincial college. This being the case, the members of the French association of Volapukists have decreed the dissolution of their society. Nevertheless they had at one time great hopes of success, and their strange jargon was almost elevated for a while to the rank of a fashionable fad. Lectures in the new language, which was to undo all the damage wrought by the Babel affair long ago, were attended by numerous students of both sexes, and small sheets in the strange compound of tongues were disseminated every week among adepts and the general public. By degrees the craze died out, and the number of Volapukists in Paris dwindled down to a few enthusiastic persons full of sentiments peculiar to those who cling through thick and thin to lost causes.—Paris Letter.

DE COSMOS VS. TELEPHONE CO.

Commencement of the Trial in This Cause Celebre This Morning.

The case of Hon. Amor De Cosmos against the Victoria & Esquimalt Telephone Co., Ltd., came on for trial at 11:30 a. m. before Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie, C. J., without a jury. Hon. A. N. Richards, Q. C., and Mr. H. D. Helmcken appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs. E. V. Bodwell and A. P. Luxton for the defendant company. An interim injunction restraining the company from digging holes, erecting poles and stretching wires in front of the plaintiff's property on government street was granted by Mr. Justice Crease some weeks ago, and this injunction was consequently continued until to-day, when application was made for a perpetual injunction.

Mr. Richards, in opening the case, explained that the action was brought for an injunction to restrain the telephone company from erecting poles and stretching wires in front of the plaintiff's property, situate on the west side of Government street, near the hotel Victoria, and almost opposite Brackman & Ker's store. The plaintiff was the owner of a large brick block, and the defendants had already dug holes opposite it for the purpose of erecting huge, unsightly poles, or rather trees, on which to stretch their wires. This was an interference with the plaintiff's rights, and all that it was necessary for him to show was that the defendants were doing him a common law injury. Of course the defendants sought to justify their interference under chapter 65 of the local statutes of 1892.

The Chief Justice: There is probably no doubt as to the common law injury, but the question is: Has not Mr. De Cosmos, and, indeed, have not all of us, consented that the Telephone Company may put their poles exactly where they please and use poles as large and as unsightly as they please? Here is an act of parliament which gives the municipal council full authority to authorize the erection of the poles. Is there anything in the act to prevent the company, with the permission of the council, from placing poles six inches from your door?

Mr. Richards: That was fully argued before Mr. Justice Crease on motion to dissolve the interim injunction. We do not think that the statute goes that far. At any rate, it is for the company to show their authority. If the defendants plead the statute we will be obliged to show that there are two modes mentioned in the statute by which they may carry on their work. They may stretch their wires overhead, or they may put them underground, and we submit as a legal proposition that they are obliged to adopt that mode which will give the plaintiff least injury or no injury, particularly as the staute makes no provision for compensation for damages. Moreover, the council has not followed the proper procedure. They have not heard the objections of individuals interested, and the consent they gave the telephone company is not, therefore a proper consent. Again, the company should have had a survey made and submitted it to the council to enable it to act intelligently, but nothing of the kind had been done. The size and the height of the poles were as objectionable as they were unnecessary. If the legislature has thrown the ratepayers on the municipal council for protection, it is clear that information of this kind must be given to the council to enable it to give intelligent approval, and such approval is a condition precedent to the carrying on of the work.

Mr. Richards then referred to the size and the height of the poles, for which there was no reason.

The chief justice: It is not the court but the municipal council that can judge of the propriety of using such large poles.

Mr. Richards: Well, the company must first get the consent of the council in the proper way.

The chief justice: The council has under the statute full discretion in the matter, and this court will not interfere with the exercise of such discretion if it is shown that the council has acted in a reasonable and judicial manner. But the council cannot decide judicially if both sides are not heard.

Mr. Bodwell: The act does not say that the council's approval is to be obtained beforehand. It reads thus: "Within the limits of the city of Victoria the erection of poles and stretching of wires..... shall be subject to the approval of the municipal council." This approval may be given at any time, and so long as the council does not actively object the company may go on with the work. Of course if the consent of the council is not obtained beforehand, it may order the company to remove any poles erected without such consent.

The chief justice: But how can the council approve when only one side is heard?

Mr. Bodwell: The council in this instance is the court and the court can govern its own procedure.

The chief justice: Subject to the supreme court.

Mr. Bodwell: It is unreasonable to suppose that the council must formally notify every one of the 22,500 persons affected.

The chief justice: The plaintiff may say that this work has never been properly approved by the council; that is, approved by proper, reasonable and legal methods. When discretion is given by parliament to a tribunal, the courts will not interfere with the result of the exercise of such discretion, if it is reached in a reasonable manner, but the courts will not permit an arbitrary exercise of discretion.

Mr. Bodwell: The city council allows the work to be done and no one has raised an objection. It is now too late for the plaintiff to come to court, as the work is done and he has practically waived his objection. Mr. De Cosmos never appeared before the council.

The chief justice: He was never summoned to appear. I have never heard of a court of justice proceeding in the absence of both parties.

Mr. Bodwell: The case is simply whether or not the poles will interfere with the convenience of the general public.

The chief justice: The council has no right to injure Mr. De Cosmos to benefit the whole population of Victoria.

Mr. Bodwell: If the legislature has given the right and the company has erected the poles and the council has approved, that is all that is required.

The chief justice here suggested that the poles might be placed where they would not inconvenience the plaintiff. There were various degrees of nuisance, and it might be possible to find some method of accommodation satisfactory to both parties.

Mr. Richards then quoted from Pollock on Torts, page 118, to show that where it was possible for a company to construct its work without injury to private rights, they were generally bound to do so. The burden of proof was on the telephone company to show that the work could not be done without creating a nuisance.

After further remarks by counsel his lordship stated that he would not interfere with the council's privilege of deciding positively and without appeal on the matters of detail, but he was bound to see that in coming to a decision they followed the principles of natural justice.

The court then adjourned for one hour, and after resuming Mr. Bodwell stated that in view of his lordship's opinion he was willing to consent to a continuance of the injunction for three weeks to bring the matter before the city council.

The chief justice thereupon made an order continuing the injunction for three weeks, the defendants undertaking to apply to the council and notify counsel for Mr. De Cosmos. His lordship further stated that the court had nothing to say as to the council's power of approval or disapproval. All he had to see to was that the council exercised its discretion in a way consonant with natural justice; that is, after hearing all parties, or giving them an opportunity to be heard.

General Dispatches.

Richmond, Va., June 2.—Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic Weissert left here last night for New York, having spent Thursday in the city in his return north from Florida. His visit to New York is said to have some relation to the Farnham post matter. The general stated that as the charter was not revoked by himself, but by the department commander, he had no official information of the trouble. Azent Leman, who spent several hours with the general yesterday, says that the reversion of this post charter and the causes that led up to it will certainly be a subject for the consideration of the grand encampment at Indianapolis in September.

San Francisco, June 2.—Director Holden of the Lick Observatory, telegraphed the United Press this morning that there is a fine group of spots on the sun which can be seen with the naked eye.

San Francisco, June 2.—Six creditors of the State Investment Insurance Co. petitioned the superior to-day to declare the company an insolvent debtor. Their claims aggregate $49,000.

A Remarkable Case of Grafting.

A remarkable case of grafting was recently described by Dr. Polaillon at the Paris Academy of Medicine. It is a case in which a piece of a dog's skull was grafted on to a human one. The operator was a young practitioner, Dr. Ricard, and the patient a woman of 45, who had suffered from a tumor in the frontal bone. As it grew out of the bone a part of the latter had to be removed to get rid of the tumor. The brain was thereby laid bare, and cerebral hernia ensued. Dr. Ricard, seeing this, thought of removing a piece of living bone from a dog's skull, and cutting it exactly to fit into the void in the woman's forehead. He was careful in taking antiseptic precautions. The grafted piece has knit with the frontal bone into which it was inserted, and the patient is now quite well. Dr. Polaillon speaks of this operaton as the first successful one of the kind ever performed.

THE SCHOOL BY-LAW.

To the Editor: It might be as well to remind those who didn't vote not to be quite so fresh next time. Everybody that "Parent the First" reminded not to forget to vote for the school by-law said: "Oh, the schools will carry anyhow," and so stayed at home, or was careless about it. Many workmen with families also complain that they were working quite a distance from the polls and have only half an hour for lunch, and consider the polls should have been kept open until 6 o'clock in the evening to give them a chance. We saw that the voter whose children had grown up, and those who sent them to private schools, and the indefatigable mossback, when there is a few mills at stake, and who has plenty of time on hand, got there all the same; but they didn't defeat the noblest by-law of them all, thank Heaven, as they did the rest.

PARENT NO. 1.

OUR CITY COUNCIL.

To the Editor:—It would seem that the present council are determined to sacrifice the interests of the city in nearly every matter coming before them. Yesterday they passed a resolution declaring that all poles erected by the Telephone Co., wheresoever they may be situate, as well as any poles that may at any time in the future be erected by the said company, were properly erected and duly authorized to be erected by the council. Why was such a resolution necessary? It certainly was not to benefit the city, and if not in the city's interest it must have been for the benefit of the company.

At the present time there is an action pending in the Supreme Court questioning the right of the company to erect these poles. Was the resolution obtained to be used as a factor in that suit? That the resolution was against the best interests of the city is apparent on slight consideration, and the alderman fathering it must have known it to be so. If the company fail in the action referred to and have to remove their poles, you will find a demand for compensation made against the city, on the ground that the poles were erected by the authority of the council; that they had to erect them, not where the company deemed best, but where the city officials directed them to be put, and that the council has resolved that the work was authorized by them and properly done. Again, the evil effects of the resolution appear when you look ahead.

Suppose a few years hence, when the city has advanced to that stage when all wires should be put underground, and the council are desirous of removing these unsightly poles from the streets. They will be met with this resolution forever barring them from removing poles which they authorized to be erected, and virtually guaranteed as being erected properly and lawfully.

The resolution is as good as a perpetual bond of indemnity to the company. It declares that all poles hereafter erected by the company (no limit as to time) are to be considered as being duly authorized, and as properly put up.

No wonder the ratepayers refused to pass the by-laws yesterday. A council that could pass such a resolution as the above is not fit to have the expenditure of large sums of money entrusted to them.

I should not wonder if some of the aldermen have not the "gall" to bring in a by-law to buy the tramway for $600,000, and the Esquimalt waterworks for $400,000, now that it only requires a majority of one of a vote of the ratepayers to carry them. Many thanks for that to ex-Mayor Grant. ECHO.

IMITATED A BROTHER'S ACT

Andrew Kirk Sends a Bullet Through His Brain a Week After

HIS BROTHER CUT HIS THROAT

No Reason Known for the Deed—It Was a Deliberate Suicide—It is Said That a Third Brother Drowned Himself in Scotland.

A week ago yesterday, at the hour of noon, James G. Kirk ended his existence in a little cottage on the Esquimalt road, where he lived with his brother, Andrew Kirk, and the latter's wife. He drew the blade of a penknife across his jugular vein and when found was dead. Despondency at his illness or a desire for relief from a sudden paroxysm of pain were surmised as causes for the deed.

This morning, at nearly the same hour, Andrew Kirk, the surviving brother, sought the seclusion of the front bedroom in the same cottage and sent a bullet through his brain. He fell to the floor and died almost instantly. Mrs. Kirk, attracted by the report of the revolver, rushed to the front of the house. One glance into the room was sufficient, and she ran on to the roadway calling for help. Twice she fell on the road before she reached the Half Way House, two doors below her home. The half-crazed woman was taken in charge by several lady friends, and a party headed by Mr. Jones went back to the house. There was nothing to be done but to telephone for the police officer of Esquimalt and Coroner Hasell.

A Times reporter was at the house a little after noon and was admitted by those in charge. Kirk had evidently seated himself on the edge of the bed, for he had fallen forward upon the floor. His back was bolstered up against the side of the bed and his head hung sideways on his shoulder. The heavy revolver lay on the floor and the arms were at the sides of the body. A bullet hole under the right eye showed where the ball had entered. The clothing was saturated with blood, which dripped on the carpeted floor. Kirk was in his shirt sleeves.

The Kirk cottage is one of the prettiest on the Esquimalt road. It is painted white, and a well-kept garden with gravel walks surrounds it. The house is neatly furnished and bears evidence of care and scrupulous cleanliness. It is the second house below the Halfway House.

As far as known Andrew Kirk's reason for suicide was as mysterious as that of his brother. He left no letter or paper of any kind to explain the cause for the deed. It is said that a third brother drowned himself in Scotland several years ago. James Kirk never showed any symptoms of mental derangement. Andrew was quiet and reserved. He was what people call "peculiar;" as one acquaintance expressed it when the elder brother killed himself, "I would not have been so much surprised had it been Andrew." However, there was never anything remarkable about his actions.

He worked as a machinist at the Albion Iron Works and enjoyed the respect of his employers and fellow workmen. The latter say that he took the death of his brother very much to heart, which may offer a reason for to-day's melancholy act. He was at work this week as usual.

The deceased was about 45 years of age and was a native of Fifeshire, Scotland. He came here from that country several years ago. He was married two years ago, a few years before the Queen's Birthday celebration. His wife came out from Scotland, and he met her at Vancouver, where the ceremony was performed. They had no children.

There will be an inquest, probably late this afternoon or tomorrow morning. It is not likely that any new facts will be brought out at the official inquiry. The date of the funeral will not be fixed until after the inquest.

EDUCATION ONLY.

One By-Law Carried Yesterday Afternoon—Three Defeated.

Only one of the four by-laws submitted to the ratepayers yesterday was carried, the education by-law, by a majority of 54, the others being overwhelmingly defeated. The education by-law provides for the borrowing of $85,000 for educational purposes. The vote follows:

Opening of the Vienna.

The dining-room of "The Wilson," Yates st., is now known as "The Vienna" and open as a first-class restaurant. Both the service and the kitchen have been so much improved that guests going there will recall dining in one of the best restaurants in either Paris, Vienna or New York. Mr. Charles Eissner, formerly of Delmonico's, New York, is now managing this splendidly furnished and conveniently situated establishment, where meals may be obtained at all times. Table d'hote dinner is served from 12 to 2 at 35 cents, and from 5 to 8 at 50 cents; with wine, 75 cents. Choice wines, liquors and cigars always on hand. *

The collier Romulus came out of the Esquimalt dock to-day and steamed to the outer wharf. She will be further repaired and will then take on a load of coal and proceed south.

Quarterly Meeting.

The quarterly meeting of the St. Andrew's and Caledonia Society will be held this evening. Besides regular routine business, arrangements will be made for the annual picnic to be held on the 4th of July.

Estimates and Sewerage.

A special meeting of the city council will be held this evening. The principal business to come up will be the civic estimates. It is expected, of course, that a little sewerage will be sandwiched in the discussion.

P. O. Home Meeting.

The annual meeting of the subscribers of the P. O. home is to be held this evening at the home on Rae street. The annual reports of the managers and officers will be read and considered and managers for the ensuing year elected.

The New Collector.

Mr. J. C. Saunders has been appointed collector of customs at Port Townsend, vice Andrew Wasson. The Republican customs officers will be looking for new positions in a few days, as it is said that the new collector is going to "decapitate" every one of them.

The Seattle's Injuries.

It is said that it will cost between $15,000 and $20,000 to repair the steamer City of Seattle, which ran on a sand bank near Marrowstone Point last week. Almost every bolt in the steamer's hull has been loosened and many plates will have to be replaced.

The B. C. B. G. A. Inspected.

The three batteries, B. C. B. G. A., under command of Lieut.-Col. Prior, were last evening inspected by Hon. J. C. Patterson, minister of militia. The minister complimented the officers and men on their appearance and efficiency. Hon. Jno. Haggart left for the east this morning.

The Free Library.

For the month of May Dr. McGregor, city librarian, reports the issuance of 1,663 books; 846 of these to ladies and 817 to gentlemen. This was the first occasion in the history of the free library when the ladies were the most numerous borrowers. The highest daily issue was 154, the average 70, and 25 new cards were taken out.

The Haytien Republic.

Inspector Coblentz of the treasury department was in the city last evening. He is at work on the Haytien Republic case, in which he has been in the midst of the fray. The case is becoming more widespread every day, and it is hinted that certain officials of the United States customs service will be called upon to explain their connection with the now famous steamer.

Prefers Percentage.

David Lawrie, general manager of the Fire Insurance Company of London, Eng., is in the city. Mr. Lawrie is on an extended tour of Canada and the United States in the interest of his company, which will probably start an agency here. He does not seem pleased with the idea of paying a $300 license. He thinks a percentage on the fire premiums a more equitable arrangement and one less liable to create a monopoly.

Handsomely Furnished.

The C. P. N. Company's steamer Premier is alongside the dock having a new electric light plant put in position. The painters and furnishers are also at work finishing the cabins. When the work is completed the Premier will be one of the most handsomely furnished steamers in the northwest. The dining-room has been entirely remodelled and the walls have been covered with delicately tinted raised paper. The upholstering will be superb.

After Mohun's Scalp.

Engineer Mohun wants an investigation. He says: "The assertions of certain aldermen are untrue. I suppose that I'm the man referred to."

Alderman Baker spoke thus to a Times: "Well, he'll have a chance for an investigation. The sewerage by-law has been defeated. The ratepayers want no more sewers, they will not require the services of sewerage engineers. I intend introducing another resolution dispensing with the services of Engineer Mohun. There is no work for him to do."

New, But Well Known.

J. St. Clair Blackett, a popular young man and well known in real estate and insurance circles, has taken over the business of Frank G. Richards, real estate agent, of Yates street. Mr. Blackett has removed across the street from the old offices. He is now in a well lighted and newly fitted up office and ready to do business with all comers. As Mr. Blackett is well known there is no doubt that a good deal of business will come his way. Mr. Blackett is agent for the Union Company and the address is 74 Yates street.

Robert Gaylor as "Sport McAllister."

Robert Gaylor is well-known throughout the theatrical world. A supple, taut-rigged little fellow with a face and manner that suggest infinite possibilities in the way of fun—not the oily, unctuous sort that repels while it amuses, but the natural, easy kind, that commands rather than begs appreciation. His Irish brogue is rich and true to life. He is to appear at the Victoria to-night in his latest New York laughing success, "Sport McAllister," and will give the same splendid performance that characterized his famous run at the Bijou Theatre, New York.

The Sound Boats.

There is said to be a steamboat sensation in the wind, which, when sprung, will be of far-reaching consequence in every city on Puget Sound. The new arrangement is nothing less than the withdrawal by the Northern Pacific from Sound traffic. Nothing definite was known until yesterday, when the assertion was made that the City of Seattle had been permanently withdrawn from the Whatcom route. A late report by a committee of the Northern Pacific railroad says that the Puget Sound & Alaska line has never proved remunerative to the railroad company. Capt. D. B. Jackson will, it is said, gain control of the company's steamers. He is said to have the indirect backing in his undertaking of the Great Northern, Union Pacific and Northern Pacific railroad companies.

ADDRESSES OF WELCOME.

St. Luke's and St. Michael's Greet Bishop and Miss Perrin.

A reception to Bishop Perrin and Miss Perrin was held yesterday at St. Luke's church. J. W. Tolmie presented Bishop Perrin with the following address on behalf of the congregation:

To the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Columbia:—

We, the Rector and Churchwardens of St. Luke's and St. Michael's (Cedar Hill Parish), on behalf of the congregations, desire to welcome Your Lordship to the diocese, where, we hope, you may be long spared to administer the sacred functions pertaining to the holy office of Bishop.

In common with the congregations of the diocese, we feel deeply grateful to His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury in giving us a diocesan so eminently adapted for the Colonial Episcopate and evidently fitted to take up the mantle laid down by your wearied and justly esteemed predecessor.

Your Lordship can rely on our faithfulness and respect, which may recall the happy associations of St. Luke's beyond the sea, but we shall always endeavor to maintain the bond which must ever unite children of the church with their Right Reverend Father in God.

(Signed) M. C. BROWNE, M.A., Rector.
SIMON F. TOLMIE,
A. T. GATRELL,

Churchwardens of Cedar Hill Parish.

Miss Alice King, on behalf of the girls' society, presented Miss Perrin with the following address:

To Miss Perrin:—

Dear Madam,—We, the girls of St. Luke's, take the earliest opportunity of giving you a hearty welcome to this new country, and hope the new friends you will make may in some degree compensate for those whom you left in the land of your birth.

We were pleased when told months ago the new Bishop would be accompanied by a sister devoted to church work, and then resolved to ask you, on your first visit to Cedar Hill, to become our patroness, and permit us to call our young society "Miss Perrin's Guild."

We shall always try to promote the objects in view, and meet your expectations; and truly do we wish the ladies of this diocese may not be less in your esteem and affection than those you parted for a cause which has ever taken England's best daughters to the mission field.

Signed on behalf of the society,
ALICE KING, President.
ADELAIDE POLLOCK, Vice-Pres.
DAISY MERINS, Treasurer.
EMILY BROWNE, Secretary.

The Institute Bazaar.

There was a very good attendance at the bazaar of the Young Ladies' Institute last evening, and the financial success of it is assured. The young ladies assisting at the various booths have been well rewarded for their energy. The Bantley family furnished music during the evening. Miss Dolan sang and Miss Conlin gave a recitation during the evening. The bazaar will close to-night. The raffles will take place, and all the fancy goods remaining will be auctioned off. The drill will be repeated and there will be a concert, to all of which admission will be free.

H. M. S. Garnet, the first ship of the British Behring Sea patrol, will leave for the north at daylight to-morrow. She will warn the schooners relative to the continuance of the modus vivendi and also the Anglo-Russian agreement as to the zone about the islands. H. M. S. Nymphe will go north on Monday. Both ships will carry a large mail to the sealers. A committee of sealers met Captain Hughes-Hallett, the senior officer at present at this station, this morning and had a conference regarding the action to be taken by the patrol and the movements of the schooners.

New York, June 2.—Monsignor Satolli will soon begin an extended tour through the west, which will, if the present intention is carried out, be prolonged two months more. The start will be made on June 19th, when, in company with Rev. Fr. Thomas O'Gorman and two or three others of the faculty of the Catholic university, he will go direct to St. Paul. From Helena the party will make a leisurely tour of Yellowstone Park. From there they will return to Helena, then proceed to Spokane. They will also visit Seattle, Tacoma and Puget Sound and Victoria. It is not yet definitely determined whether the party will prolong their visit so as to visit San Francisco.

Sundry Gentlemen Whose Lives Have Been Spent in Obscurity.

Albany Sunday Press: Modern women has reversed the old order of affairs. She goes forth into the world and wins fame while her husband contents himself more or less in obscurity at home. She has found her way into nearly every calling and profession and has acquitted herself with honor. We hear of her performing difficult surgical operations, teaching the Semitic languages and running for office, and nothing in the way of human endeavor which she would now attempt would startle us.

The husband of the famous woman: Who is he? Seldom we hear of him. If we do it is in connection with a biographical account of his wife. Usually he is an interesting man who has shunned notoriety or lacked the peculiar genius of acquiring fame possessed by his better half. Let us introduce him to the public.

If a vote of the English-speaking people was to be taken to decide the identity of the greatest living woman, probably the verdict would be for Mrs. Humphrey Ward, who set the thinking world on fire with "Robert Elsmere," and three years later produced "The History of David Grieve," an even greater work from a literary point of view. Her husband is well and favorably known in a certain select set in London. He is an art critic of the London Times, and is a man of rare intelligence and learning. He has to his credit quite as many books as his more famous wife. His edition of the English poets had quite a circulation. "The Reign of Queen Victoria: A History of Progress," appeared about the time of the publication of "Robert Elsmere," and won Her Majesty's unqualified praise. This happy couple work and live together in their books and writings, and it is a question whether she is the more charming woman or he the more charming man.

As the "husband of" Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Henry Brewster Stanton was known. At the time of his death, not long ago, he was 82 years of age and occupied a prominent position on the editorial staff of the New York Sun. He did his first writing for Thurlow Weed on the Monroe Telegraph, a paper which served its purpose in giving Weed a start in the world and then passed out of existence. Mr. Stanton was a man of strong opinions, and in this, at least, he enjoyed the sympathy of his wife.

Mary J. Holmes is another of the women who have written themselves into fame. She married Daniel Holmes, a lawyer of Versailles, Ky., and lived happily with him. He was a retiring man who enjoyed a small country practice, and the remuneration she has received from her books was a very welcome addition to the income of the family. Of the work of his wife he was very proud, and he often said: "I am nothing; but Mary, she is something."

Lillie Devereaux Blake has been twice married. Her first husband was Mr. F. G. Quay, who died in 1857. In 1866 she became the wife of Grenfill Blake, and shortly after this important event she became known as a lecturer. For many years Mr. Blake had been an invalid, and she has been the sole means of the family's support. They are devoted to each other and are very happy. Before his sickness he was a prosperous business man, and now in the time of his misfortune he has just reason to be proud of his self-reliant wife.

He who does not know about Mrs. Lease has not read the newspapers. Kansas is her field of action, and she enjoys the distinction of being the most noted woman in the state. She shares the honors of the Alliance party with Senator Peffer. Mr. Lease is a druggist and a capable one. In Topeka he is well known and generally liked. He takes his wife's political ambitions coolly and often manifests pride in her achievements, but otherwise it does not matter to him who holds office. His business is his first interest. In stature he is small, in demeanor meek, but he is possessed of a plentiful fund of quiet humor. Personally he shuns notoriety, and while he appreciates the increase of business which has resulted from his wife's interest in politics, he does not like the idea of being gazed at by every customer who enters the store. As he says: "It is all right for my wife to make speeches, but it's the drug store just the same that keeps things a running."

Whether or not it was matrimony that prompted Belva Lockwood to become an attorney and run for president, it is certain that she did not study law until after she was married. She was only 18 when she first went to the altar, and perhaps that accounts for it. Uriah H. McNall was the name of her first husband, and he was a well-to-do, orthodox farmer in Central New York. He died in 1887 and she soon after married Dr. Ezekiel Lockwood, a practicing physician in a small provincial town, who died a few years ago. She was a full-fledged lawyer and had already won considerable reputation as a woman's rights advocate when she promised to "love, serve and obey" the doctor. Mr. Lockwood was devoted to his profession, which yielded him a fair income. In his quiet way he was quite as ardent a social reformer as his wife. Since her husband's death Mrs. Lockwood has been more earnest than ever in her efforts to enfranchise her fellow women and become chief executive of our nation.

The home of Dr. Abram Lozier, in New York, is a happy one. His wife, Dr. Jennie M. Lozier, is president of Sorosis, the most famous society of women in the world. Dr. Lozier was formerly a practicing physician and a professor in the New York Medical College for Women, but owing to ill health he gave up an extensive practice to engage in real estate and building, in which he has fast accumulated a fortune. Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, of the national woman's council, and her husband, conduct what they call an "equal rights" household. Their home is at Somerton, Pa. Mr. Avery is a traveling man who has a good salary. His wife keeps a strict account of both parties to the contract, and their joint income is equally divided between them. It is a question whether a majority of men would submit to such an arrangement, but Mr. Avery does with pleasure and finds his wife a strict and accurate accountant.

Theodore F. Sewall, the husband of May Wright Sewall, president of the national council of women of the United States, is a man of exceptional learning and ability, if not so famous as his wife. She pays him the compliment of saying that he is the only man in the world that she could ever have thought of marrying. They are part proprietors in a flourishing private school at Indianapolis. He is a graduate of Harvard and a most devoted student.

The husband of Harriet Beecher Stowe, Calvin Ellis Stowe, was a preacher and teacher. In England, when a boy of only six, he was cast upon his own resources. Out of charity some relatives who were immigrating to America included him in the party. They settled in Massachusetts. Young Stowe sat up late at night and poured over books, and his studious habits attracted the attention of several philanthropic people, who furnished the money to send him to Bowdoin College. Their generosity was rewarded by his progress. It was while a professor in the famous old Maine Institute that he met one of the daughters of the great Beecher family and married her. Failing health and other reverses kept him very poor, and at the time Mrs. Stowe wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the family was in crying need of money. But for this the book would never have been written. When prosperity came with the immense sale of this novel the Stowes removed to Hartford and the husband gave up his teaching altogether and devoted the remainder of his uneventful life to pouring over immense volumes of theological history and to the writing of a philosophical essay which was more profound than popular. He died in 1886, at the age of 84.

Margaret Deland and her husband are the happy combination of a good writer and a hustling advertising agent. Their attractive home in Boston is the rendezvous of many literary people. In this instance there is a strange sympathy between these two widely separated professions.

Daniel P. Livermore is the husband of the eminent woman lecturer. He is a Unitarian minister by choice and an editor by the force of circumstances. In the earlier days of their married life Mrs. Livermore accompanied him from town to town, as the location of his pastorate was changed, but when the war broke out she turned her attention to more serious business. Thereupon her husband gave up preaching and became editor of a small reform paper in Chicago. He is a man of devout and ethereal views, sharing for the most part her opinions. He recognizes her superior abilities, and generally acts upon her advice.

Every morning when "Julien Gordon" takes up her pen to begin her day's literary task, her husband, Col. S. Van Rensalaer Cruger leaves his house for his office in the Trinity Church corporation, where he superintends all of the details of the management of the great estate. He is a man of great culture, devoted to his home, and becomes less fond of society, to which his Knickerbocker ancestry furnishes an open sesame, as he grows older. He reads many books, including, of course, those written by his charming and brilliant wife. Only once has his name been brought into any public prominence, when he accepted the republican nomination for lieutenant-governorship in 1885.

Every novel-reading American has heard of Amelia Rives. Comparatively few have ever heard of her husband, John A. Chanler, whom she married in June, 1888. Mr. Chanler is a near relative of John Jacob Astor, is a member of all the swell clubs of New York, and spends his time in travelling and enjoying life generally. He is about 33 years old, is possessed of ample means, and recently achieved fame by founding a number of scholarships to defray the expenses of sending promising young American artists to Paris. He is small and well-built, has clean cut features, and looks the aristocratic, well-to-do young man that he is.

THE THINNING OF THE THATCH.

I was once a merry urchin—curly headed I was called,
And I laughed at good old people when I saw them going bald;
But it's not a proper subject to be lightly joked about,
For it's dreadful to discover that your roof is wearing out!

I remember asking uncle, in my innocent suprise,
How he liked his head made use of as a skating rink by flies;
But, although their dread intrusions I shall manfully resist,
I'm afraid they soon will have another rink upon their list.

When invited to a party I'm invariably late,
For I waste the time in efforts to conceal my peeping pate,
Though I coax my hair across it—though I brush away for weeks—
Yet I can't prevent its parting and dividing into streaks.

I have tried a hair restorer, and I've rubbed my head with rum,
But the thatch keeps getting thinner, and the new hair doesn't come;
So I gaze into the mirror with a gloomy, vacant stare,
For the circle's getting wider of that open space up there!

GUARDING AGAINST MOTHS.

Rules to be Observed While Putting Clothing Away.

Every year there is a demand for something that will prevent the ravages made in winter clothing by moths during the summer, and although there are many preparations offered for sale, none seem to be entirely effectual. The best course is to get the largest sized flour sacks of thick paper, taking care that they are free from holes; then put away the garments and seal them up. If they have been at all neglected it may be desirable to examine them in the course of the season. In this case, paste a strip of paper on one side of the bag, lay the edges exactly even, fold the paper over to the other side and paste again. When it is necessary to examine the articles one may split the paper with a sharp knife without injuring the bag, then it can be sealed up as before.

If the examination is thorough and the garments are immediately put away again, they will be comparatively safe through the remainder of the season, but they must not be allowed to hang where some stray moth may find them, else the mischief that may not have been done at first will now be wrought, and the care and pains are worse than wasted. Small articles of especial value may be wrapped in thick cotton cloths and placed in the mouth of the oven, or in a current of air hot enough to destroy the eggs of the moth. This is an excellent plan if one has facilities for carrying it out. Garments that are to be washed should be carefully looked after, for moths are partial to clean clothes, although they will not refuse soiled ones when hungry. Salt thoroughly sprinkled over attic and storeroom floors is one of the best preventives; indeed, it is said that moths will not touch anything that has the flavor of salt about it. Some housewives rinse flannels in water slightly salted and claim that moths will leave them alone. Large, coarse furs, such as carriage robes and rugs, may be treated in this way; the salt will do the fur no harm, and if thoroughly sprinkled and left rolled up for several days, then shaken out and packed away, there is very little danger. Fine goods—those with high colors—are rarely injured if sprinkled with perfectly dry salt; the eggs of the moth are almost certain to be killed by its contact, and this probably is the safest as well as the simplest precaution that can be taken.—New York Ledger.

Captain Cook Not a Captain.

Although we speak of "Captain Cook's Journal," that famous navigator, as Capt. Wharton reminds us, was on his first and most important voyage round the world only "captain by courtesy," being, in fact, lieutenant in command. It is evident, however, that he was the inspiring genius of the expedition. Many a quaintly characteristic entry will be found in his Journal, now for the first time presented to readers in the substantial volume which Mr. Elliot Stock has published, but everywhere the indefatigable zeal and ardor of this martyr to the cause of geographical exploration are apparent. It is remarked that he had a happy knack of finding names for localities, and with some notable exceptions—among which "Botany Bay" will at once occur to the reader—his names, have not been, and are not likely to be, altered. His rule seems to have been to adopt the native name wherever he could ascertain and imitate the sound. Where this was impossible he generally managed to find a descriptive and distinctive appellation for each promontory, bay or island.—London Daily News.

RUBBER FROM OIL.

A Recent Important Discovery Which Has Been Kept a Secret.

A most unique manufacturing establishment, the only one of its kind in the world, has been in operation successfully for some months at Savannah, Ga., writes C. B. Warrand. Here cottonseed oil is manufactured by a secret process into rubber; such, at least, some of the best experts have pronounced the product of the factory to be. Nobody knows anything about what is going on inside of the factory with the exception of a few ignorant workmen. Nobody is admitted. The bare facts alone are known that crude cotton-seed oil from the oilmill, costing about 50 cents a gallon, or about $135 per ton, is carted in in five-ton lots, and that tons of rubber, worth about $1 per pound, or $2000 per ton, are carted out and shipped to a very prominent rubber-dealer and manufacturer of Boston.

In a recent interview the discoverer of the process, who is an artist of some prominence, states that while experimenting with cotton-seed oil to produce a varnish for paint tinge, he obtained a product entirely foreign to his expectations—not a way to make varnish, but rubber. He claims that his process is so simple that it is not patentable; hence his only safeguard is in the secrecy of the process. The only information he gives is that he uses only 15 per cent. of genuine rubber to produce an article which cannot in any way be distinguished from crude indiarubber. As soon as his discovery was made he went to Boston, where a number of rubber experts pronounced the product to be genuine rubber and would not believe that such an article could be produced by artificial means. A prominent rubber-goods manufacturer of Boston recognized at once the value of the discovery and took a different view from the rest, and purchased an interest in the process and placed $30,000 a the command of the discoverer for the purpose of erecting the necessary plant. The experience and availability of the rubber trees are limited, and it is doubtful if much higher prices than the present quotations would have the effect of causing a corresponding increase in the production. Artificially planted rubber trees would require many years before they could be made to yield, and the present rubber forest is deteriorating fast. Any discoveries in the line of a quick and cheap process for the manufacture of artificial rubber are likely, therefore, to possess great commercial value and importance.—Manufacturer's Record.

The Telephone Co. Gets Leave From the City Council to Proceed

WITH ERECTION OF TELEPHONE POLES

Provided the City May Stretch Electric Light or Fire Alarm Wires Thereon—Ald. Bragg's Resolution Out of Order—Oak Bay Improvement By-Law Passed.

The special meeting of the city council called for 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon did not convene until 30 minutes after the hour. Mayor Beaven was not present until that time.

Ald. Belyea moved approving of the erection of poles by the telephone company and the stretching of wires and other appliances thereon, and that the approval of the council be granted for the continued erection of poles by the telephone company. The resolution also granted permission to open up and excavate streets for that purpose.

Ald. Munn moved in amendment that the city council have the power to place electric fire alarm or electric light wires on the company's poles.

Ald. McTavish—It is dangerous to have electric light and telephone wires on the same poles. Crossing of electric light and telephone wires has often caused accidents.

Ald. Munn—If the company keep their telephone wires at the top, there is no danger of the electric light wires falling upon them.

Ald. Henderson—There is not much danger from wires running parallel. If the wires run at right angles then there is the danger. This is not any more than the company should be willing to grant. The company should be made to take down the old poles.

Ald. Belyea—The act does not stipulate that the city council has a right to make such provisions.

The council went into committee of the whole.

Ald. McTavish—I don't object to the resolution but I don't think it policy to string all kinds of wires on the same poles.

Ald. Henderson—The mistake was in allowing the company to erect the poles. The way it is at present there are three or four companies having poles in the streets in the city. There is no system. The city should have erected poles itself and taxed all companies for using them. Then there would have been a uniform system.

Ald. Styles—We are giving away a very valuable privilege and we want a return.

Ald. Baker—If they object to the city using their poles, they should not be given permission to open the streets.

Mayor Beaven read from the statutes which gave the company power to erect poles and stretch wires thereon, to open streets and carry wires underground, under the supervision and subject to the approval of the council.

Ald. Henderson—If the council does not give approval?

Ald. Belyea—They can compel the council to give approval. The council has the selection of places for poles.

Ald. Henderson—We might pass a resolution compelling the telephone company to take their poles up again and put them in other places.

Ald. Baker—They have had no permission from the council.

Ald. Belyea—The surveyor has given the company locations.

The amendment of Ald. Munn carried, only Ald. Belyea and McTavish voting nay. The amendment was reported from committee and the resolution as amended was passed by the council.

Ald. Bragg had a resolution that Contractor Elliott lay a sidewalk along the south side of Oak Bay avenue, between Cadboro Bay and Fowl Bay roads, the cost of construction to be paid out of local assessments, if local assessments be insufficient the difference to be paid out of the general revenue and be repaid again into the corporation treasury.

Mayor Beaven—This resolution is in contravention of three by-laws. You will have to amend the by-laws first. You cannot amend them by this resolution.

Ald. Bragg—There is something radically wrong about this local improvement by-law. It is a funny thing that these people cannot have a sidewalk without waiting years for it.

The resolution was not considered.

A by-law for the laying of a sidewalk on the south side of Oak Bay avenue was put through the final stages.

The council adjourned at 5:30.

OUR KOOTENAY LETTER.

Prospectors Waiting for the Snow to go—Railway Progress—Real Estate.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Nelson, May 30.—About five hundred prospectors are camped in and around New Denver, on the shores of the Slocan Lake, awaiting the disappearance of the snow from the hills. The town is well situated, and when the wagon road is built to Nakusp there may be quite a rush in that direction, especially if the company who possess the charter to build a railroad into that country show any strong sign that they intend to build the road. Up to date 919 claims have been located and recorded at New Denver, and all these, including the celebrated Freddie Lee, are on the New Denver side of the divide. A syndicate of Minneapolis speculators, who came here direct from the mines about Port Arthur, and who are interested rather heavily in various mining locations in the Slocan country, have purchased the townsite of Four-Mile City and part of the New Denver townsite. It is stated on good authority that they are in treaty with Angus McGillivray to purchase the townsite that has just been awarded to him. If they get it a well defined boom will probably take place there next spring.

Lardo, on the Kootenay lake, will possess a newspaper in a couple of weeks. There are not more than half a dozen houses in Lardo. A newspaper was also talked of at Lardeau, on the Columbia river, this summer.

The first locomotive on the Nelson & Fort Sheppard railway passed over the boundary line on the 23rd of May. This is the first locomotive that has entered the South Kootenay country. The headquarters of the construction camp is at Sayward and the C. & K. Navigation Company intend making this place their southern terminal point.

The grading and construction of the Nelson & Fort Sheppard railway is now well under way at both ends of the line, nearly 1,000 Italian laborers having been evenly distributed between Nelson and Sayward. As yet there is too much snow on the summit and the higher portions of the pass through which the line runs for any work to be done more than 15 miles out each way. If the road is to be in running order by the 1st of October, the time stipulated, there will have to be some faster work done than the contractors are now doing.

Nelson property may see a rise this summer as work on the railroad progresses. The Victoria syndicate who own the large addition immediately east of the original townsite proper have secured the terminal grounds by giving the railway company fifty acres of land. The freight sheds, warehouses and workshops will be built on this land, while the passenger station will be built on the ground set aside in Nelson near the citizens' wharf.

The water has risen from 12 to 15 feet in Kootenay lake during the past four weeks. The three wharves at Nelson are almost entirely submerged.

Several prominent real estate men of Victoria are now in the Kootenay country, among them being Joshua Davies, representing the West Kootenay Land Company, Henry Croft and N. F. Snowden.

W. P. Middough and his Minneapolis syndicate claim to have $200,000 invested in West Kootenay.

Hon. Mr. Paterson, minister of militia, donated $100 towards the building of a Methodist church in Nelson.

There will be many tenders submitted for the building of the courthouse at Nelson. Contractors from Victoria, Nelson and Kaslo are figuring on the work.

KASLO NEWS.

The Trend of Events in and Around the Great Mining Camps.

(Kaslo Examiner.)

The high water which has for several days flooded the streets of Bonner's Ferry is subsiding.

It is reported here this week that small-pox is prevailing at Revelstoke, no less than seven cases under treatment up to date.

On Saturday, June 17th, there will be a race in Kaslo for $500 a side between E. E. Coy's brown mare Dutch of Kaslo and Wilson's black of Nelson.

The members of the Masonic order at Nelson have completed the necessary preliminary arrangements and applied for a charter. The local lodge will start off with more than 30 members.

Capt. Davies is down from the Bonanza ranch on the Kootenay. The captain says the water is up to last year's high water mark, and fearing his pastures may overflow he has decided to move his cattle to the hills.

Arrangements have been made whereby Kaslo will have a wharf in the near future, a company having been organized, $10,000 subscribed, and work on the wharf will begin to-day. The location is at the foot of and on the east side of Third street. The wharf will be 200 feet long, approaches twelve feet wide, and slips on both sides of the same width.

On Wednesday the steamer Nelson made her quickest time from Nelson, arriving in Kaslo at 4 o'clock, with about 90 passengers on board, the first of the excursionists to arrive. As the Nelson entered Kaslo bay a royal salute of 21 guns was fired, which was answered by 13 blasts from the steamer's whistle. The steamer quickly started for Nelson for a second load of excursionists.

It has been reported that Mr. Musgrove, the former publisher of the Examiner, left Kaslo without paying his debts. We do not think it is true, for the present owner of the paper made diligent inquiry before paying Mr. Musgrove as to any claims against the paper, and as Mr. Musgrove remained here two days after the public knew he had sold out, and as no bills have since shown up, we believe the report that Mr. Musgrove left bills unpaid to be untrue.

Shot the Collector.

Dublin, June 1.—Another agrarian crime was committed to-day in County Clare. A land agent named Maloney started out this morning to collect rents due from tenants in and about Tullah, nine and a half miles northeast of Ennis, the capital of County Clare. He was proceeding quietly along the road when, as he passed some undergrowth by the road side, he was fired upon by several men concealed in the bushes. The aim of some of the would-be assassins was good, and Malony fell. Assistance was procured as soon as possible and the wounded man was taken to Tullah, where the physicians who attended him pronounced his injuries serious.

Powderly's Philosophy.

Philadelphia, June 2.—General Master Workman Powderly, of the Knights of Labor, has issued a stirring address to the organizers of the order, urging them to renewed efforts to gather in men and women to the fold. He says there was a time when members flocked to the order in thousands, some of them as paid agents of political charlatans, others intent on rushing the whole order into a great strike, others again with the purpose of forming a new political party that would undo all the evils of unconsidered legislation, and begin a new era of reform. There was never a time, he holds, when the necessity for organization was greater than it is to-day. A million of immigrants were landed in this country this year, and seven years hence this million will vote for a president, counting as much as any other million. This million must be educated, and that by an organization or not at all. It is essential also, he holds, that the farmer should know what the wage question is, and how many it enslaves. Hence the organizers should make a special effort to organize the farmers and city workmen in such a way that they could exchange visits from time to time, and through contact with each other learn and understand that their interests are identical.

Killed in a Bull Ring.

Madrid, May 29.—During a bull fight at Getafe, near this city, to-day, a crowd of men and boys invaded the ring and worried the bulls. Two young men were gored to death and many others were injured. The public officials who were presiding made no effort to interfere with the mob entering the ring or to protect them from the bulls. The spectators applauded and cheered while the bulls charged the men who were beating them. It is announced this evening that all who invaded the ring will be prosecuted.

THE OPPOSING TEAMS.

The Victoria and Vancouver teams to play at Caledonia grounds to-morrow afternoon have been carefully picked and are evenly matched. If the Vancouvers win the match it will put them on an equal footing with the other teams; if the Victorians prove successful they will stand a good chance of winning the championship and the Hudson Bay Company's pennant. Both teams have been practicing hard and regularly, and almost every man is in good condition. From the interest that is being taken in the game it is evident that there will be an unusually large attendance at the grounds to-morrow. C Battery band will be present. The teams are:—

Victoria—Goal, J. McLeod; point, C. L. Cullin; cover point, A. Belfry; 1st defense field, J. Ketchum; 2nd defense field, G. Tite; centre, W. F. Blight; 3rd home field, F. Cullin; 2nd home field, A. E. Macnaughton; 1st home field, D. Tudhope; outside home, R. Frost; inside home, R. Eckardt; spare man, W. Clark.

Vancouver—Suckling, Myers, Cheyne, Spain, Morency, Hawmann, Quann, Smith, Nichols, Campbell, McGregor and Quigley.

BILLIARDS.

IVES PLAYING BETTER.

London, June 1.—In the international billiard match at Hengler's Circus, Ives did magnificent work this evening. He got the balls jammed and scored 1540 points in one run. His play throughout the evening was neater and steadier than before since the beginning of the match. The score now is: Ives, still playing, 4001; Roberts, 3484.

Roberts is disgusted on account of the turn matters took last evening. After the close of the game he said he would give Ives this match if Ives would play another of 2000 for £500 or £1000, the conditions of play to be the same, except that the cannon stroke be barred when the balls should get jammed in the jaws of the pocket. Ives declined Roberts' proposal.

THE TURF.

MRS. BUTTERWICK WINS THE OAKS.

London, June 2.—The Oaks at Epsom today was won by the Duke of Portland's bay filly Mrs. Butterwick, by St. Himon out of Miss Middlewick; Lord Rosebery's chestnut filly Treasure, by Bend'or, out of Bonny Jean, second; and Mrs. T. Jenning's bay filly Cyria, by Carlton, out of Queen of Cyprus, third.

MURPHY WON.

In the matched race for $100 at the Driving Park this afternoon between Murphy, Hilton and Johnny Hooker, Murphy won by half a length. Hooker was left on the first half mile. There was a large attendance, the track was in good condition, and the weather completed the happiness of the crowd.

CRICKET.

MARINERS VS. SETTLERS.

Alberni, May 29.—The Queen's birthday was celebrated here with a cricket match. Teams composed of local and "Mascotte" talent were captained by Howitt and Capt. McCoskrie of the Mascotte, whose team proved the stronger. The crease was in fair condition, and with a little care and attention might be made equal to the best in British Columbia; certainly ahead of the Victoria pitches of '91. Thanks to the hospitality of the captain light refreshments were partaken of between the innings; the health of Her Majesty being proposed, was drunk most enthusiastically. The Prospect Brightening.

Tacoma, June 2.—The situation at the Merchants' National Bank is unchanged. The run continues on the trust and savings bank, but all demands are promptly paid. There is a steady drain on all other banks, but they are amply able to stand it up to their full liabilities. All are confident and the scare is dying out and confidence is being restored.

The supreme court to-day rendered a decision that the Tacoma water bonds may be legally issued up to $1,700,000, and there is much rejoicing throughout the city to-day. This will bring an era of prosperity to the city and put all idle men at work.

Rothschild's Benevolence.

According to a recent cablegram Baron Nathaniel Rothschild has just taught the anti-Semites a lesson in charity by a splendid gift which he has made for the benefit of Viennese sufferers from pulmonary diseases, which are peculiarly prevalent in that city, owing to the cold winds and the dust. For some time past a number of philanthropic persons have been trying to found an asylum for patients of this kind, but only a fraction of the sum required was forthcoming until Baron Rothschild informed the promoters of the scheme that he wished to present them with his chateau at Reichenau, in Semmering, for the new establishment. It would be difficult to exaggerate either the timeliness or generosity of this gift. The estate and pleasure grounds, worth 5,0000,000 florins, are widely known among the most beautiful in the Styrian Alps. The baron will transfer the chateau and grounds to the society the first of August, and has promised to make all necessary alterations. It is hoped that it can be got ready for the reception of patients by next winter. Baron Rothschild has already thrown open his park and greenhouses in Vienna to the public for a small entrance fee, which goes to a local charity. His chateau in the Semmering will afford accommodation for 500 beds.

NAKUSP & SLOCAN MINES

The Eldorado of British Columbia

All the ore output now assured to Nakusp by the immediate construction of the NAKUSP & SLOCAN RAILWAY, which will start at Nakusp and end at the Forks of Carpenter Creek, directly in the centre of the Slocan Mines.

No Other Route can Possibly Compete

Thirty-five miles of Railway from Nakusp will tap the whole of the Mines of the Slocan District, and the ores are bound to come out BY THE NATURAL GATEWAY, VIA NAKUSP, to the general welfare and prosperity of the Province.

Look at the Map.

A Provincial Railway Charter and subsidy and a Dominion Railway Charter have been obtained for the Nakusp & Slocan Railway, and the Canadian Pacific Co. have entered into an agreement to lease and operate the Railway for 25 years. There can be no doubt as to the importance of NAKUSP, the Gateway of the Slocan Country, either from the North or South, and the principal shipping and distributing point for all the district tributary to Slocan Lake.

Concentrators and Samplers

Now in contemplation, consequent on the definite settlement of the Railway question. The Nakusp & Slocan Railway will be built with a rush right into the heart of the Mines. See Wardner's and other experts' estimates of the production of Slocan Mines in the press. All this now assured is directly tributary to the Nakusp & Slocan Railway.
